Why I Love Biking Miami

Last spring, I grabbed a Citi Bike on Washington Avenue. For $6.50 an hour, I cruised the Miami Beach Boardwalk. Palm trees and ocean views amazed me. I stopped at South Pointe Pier. Yachts floated by. Another day, I rented from Unlimited Biking for $25/day. I pedaled to Wynwood's murals. A bike rental in Miami skips traffic and taxi costs ($10-$30+/ride). It's pure fun for solo riders or groups.

Biking Tips for Miami

My rides taught me these tips for 2025:

[leftmargin=*]Safety: Helmets are required for under 18 (Florida law). They're included with rentals. Use headlights and red lights at night. Paths: Ride the 7-mile Boardwalk or 10-mile M-Path Trail. Avoid sidewalks, especially with e-bikes. Sidewalk biking is restricted in South Beach. Weather: Bike December–May (60s–70s°F). June–October is hot (87°F+). Ride early or late. Locks: Use provided locks at stops. Citi Bike docks reset 30-minute timers with memberships. Traffic: Watch for pedestrians on Ocean Drive. Take side streets like Española Way.

My Tip: Carry water and sunscreen. Miami's sun is intense!

Bike Rental Insurance

[leftmargin=*]Personal Insurance: Home or travel insurance rarely covers bikes. Credit card insurance (e.g., Visa) is for cars, not bikes. Check your policy. Rental Coverage: Unlimited Biking includes basic liability. Citi Bike says you ride at your own risk. Damage: Shops may charge $50 for repairs (e.g., flat tire). Inspect bikes first.

My Tip: Video the bike's condition to avoid disputes.
